

March 28 to April 1, 2008—Washington D.C.

March 28, 2008

Reception for The Epilepsy Foundation

We arrived in D.C. on the 28th and quickly changed for a reception at the Ronald Regan Building for the Epilepsy Foundation. At the reception we had the opportunity to meet Greg Grunberg from NBC's Hero's. He talked about his son who has epilepsy. As well we met several players from the N.Y Jets and Mighty Mike, from the Harlem Wizards

My Family with Greg Grunberg from NBC's Hero's

March 29, 2008

The Second National Walk for Epilepsy, Washington D.C.

It was a beautiful brisk spring morning at our Nations Capital. The Cherry Blossoms were in full bloom and over 8000 people were at the National Mall to participate in the Second National Walk for Epilepsy. The walk started close to the Capital Building and worked its way down the Mall past the Washington Monument along side the WWII Memorial and back up to the Capital. My family was proud to walk with others from the Epilepsy Foundation of Northeastern New York. My team and sponsors raised $740.00 for the cause. Thank you everyone for your support! My family all wore bright yellow t-shirts, which said Sara's Walk 2008. If you didn't know yellow is my favorite color.

At the Start of the 2nd Annual Walk for Epilepsy

About 8000 people attended the walk

As we crossed the finish line

April 1, 2008

A day on Capital Hill

On April 1, I visited the office of Senator Clinton, Senator Schumer, Congresswoman Gillibrand and Congressman Hinchey. The purpose of my visit was to discuss the Epilepsy Foundations message to Congress. This included the ADA Restoration Act (H.R. 3195), the Americans with Disabilities Act (S. 1881) and the VA Epilepsy Centers of Excellence Act 2007.

Senator Hillary Clinton's Legislative Fellow, Elizabeth Lee and Sara-Elizabeth and Jimmy

Senator Charles Schumer's Legislative aide, Stacy Warady and Sara-Elizabeth and Jimmy

Congresswoman Kirsten Gillibrand's Legislative Assistant, Jill Greco and Sara-Elizabeth

Congressman Maurice Hinchey's Legislative Assistant, Terra Sabag and Sara-Elizabeth